

ABSTRACT ODF THE DISCLOSURE

An air conditioner control systetem and method that uses a telephone network is provided. A remote electronic device e is connected to a plurality of air conditioners through the telephone network to injnput a control command to each of the air conditioiners. A control program is run in the remote electronic device to register profile information for the air conditioioners. The air conditioners are configured to transmit and receive signals over there telephone network. The remote electronic device is configured to input control commands to some or all of the air conditioners on the basis of the registered profile i information. A control command input by a remote user is automatically transmitted to a corresponding one of the air conditioners with reference to the registered prorofile information of the corresponding air conditioner.